

THE MANUSCRIPT BOOKS OF
Emily Dickinson

VOLUME I

Edited by R. W. Franklin

The Belknap Press of Harvard University Press

Cambridge, Massachusetts, and London, England . 1981

Perhaps a squirrel may remain,
 My sentiments to share.
 Grant me, Oh Lord, a sunny mind,
 Thy mind will to bear.

Safe in their Plaster Chambers,
 Untroubled by morning
 And untroubled by noon,
 Sleep the most members of the Resurrection
 Rafter of Sabin,
 And King of stars.

Light catches the breeze
 In her Castle above them,
 Batters the Bee in a steeple Eave,
 Pops the Small-Birds in various Cadence,
 All, what sagacity Revised here: